REPORT

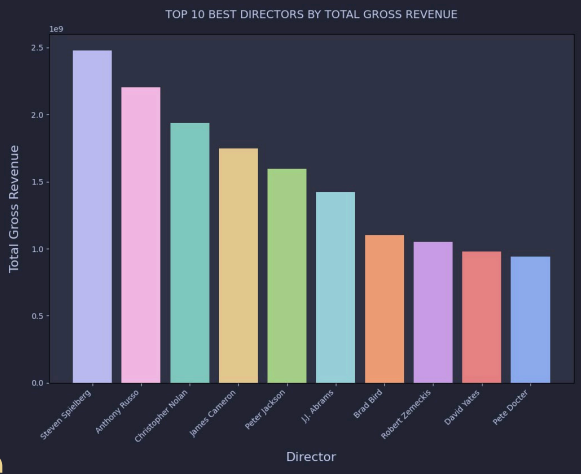

Introduction

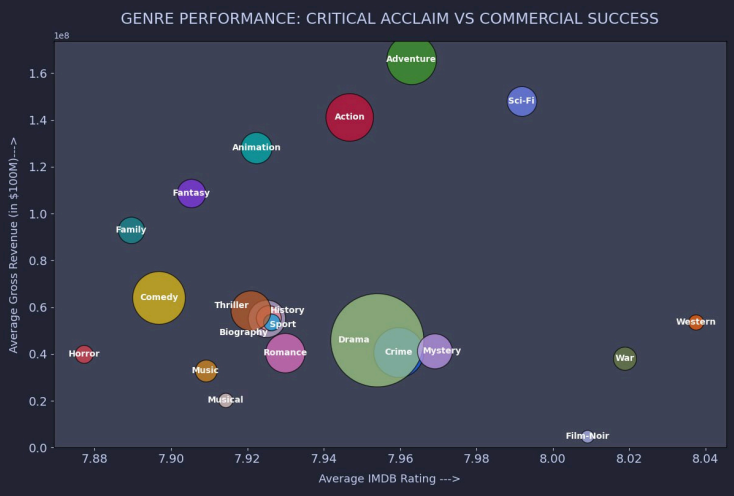

Data Driven Recommendation for the next decade of films to be released by the studio. The report is based on the dataset of the top 1000 movies in accordance with IMDb. The data is used to find the genre with the highest gross earning as well as finding the best suitable & profitable director. The movie should maximize revenue while maintaining strong audience quality.

Directors

After a detailed analysis of all the possible candidate directors, it is concluded that the best director is Steven Spielburg. He consistently produces financially successful and well rated films.

- Total gross : $2,478,133,165
- Movies in top 1000 : 13
- Average Rating : 8.03

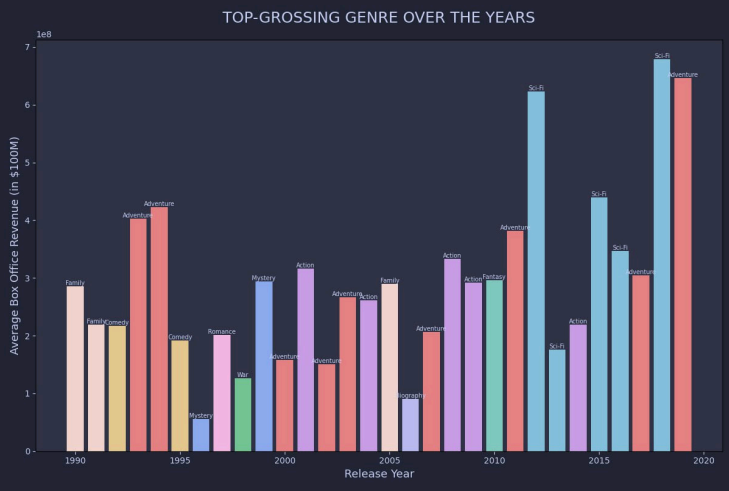

Genre

The genre with the most critical acclaim among the audience is Western and the best genre with the highest average gross revenue as well as a huge commercial success is Adventure. This genre performs well commercially while maintaining high audience approval.

- Average Gross : $8,037,500 $165,731,279
- Average rating : 8.03 7.95
- No of movies : 16 196

Best genre each year

Analysing movies from 1990 to find the best genre each year, we can see that Comedy appears 3 times while both Sci-fi and Action has 5 appearances. The adventure genre has shown consistent dominance as the highest grossing film genre.

Conclusion

After analysing the data of the top 1000 movies according to IMDb, we have found that to maximise profit and earn highest the studio should prioritize making a movie of adventure genre directed by Steven Spielberg. This will maximise expected box office returns while producing a creative and critical quality film, ensuring both short term profit and long term brand